Brewster's Millions

(RICHARD GREAVES)

There was also a clause in which he undertook to dictate the conduct of Montgomery Brewster during the year leading up to his twenty-sixth anniversary. He required that the young man should give satisfactory evidence to the executor that he was capable of managing his affairs shrewdly and wisely; that he possessed the ability to add to the fortune through his own enterprises; that he should come to his twenty-sixth anniversary with a fair name and a record free from anything worse than mild forms of dissipation; that his habits be temperate; that he possess nothing at the end of the year which might be regarded as a "visible or invisible asset"; that he make no endowments; that he give sparingly to charity; that he neither lend nor give away money, for fear that it might be restored to him later; that he live on the principle which inspires a man to "get his money's worth," be the expenditure great or small. As these conditions were prescribed for but a single year in the life of the heir, it was evident that Mr. Sedgwick did not intend to impose any restrictions after the property had gone into his hands.

"How do you like it?" asked Mr. Grant as he passed the will to Brewster.

The latter took the paper and glanced over it with the air of one who had heard but had not fully grasped its meaning.

"It must be a joke, Mr. Grant," he said, still groping with difficulty through the fog.

"No, Mr. Brewster, it is absolutely genuine. Here is a telegram from the probate court in Sedgwick's home county, received in response to a query from us. It says that the will is to be filed for probate and that Mr. Sedgwick was many times a millionaire. This statement, which he calls an inventory, enumerates his holdings and their value, and the footing shows $6,345,000 in round numbers. The investments, you see, are gift edged. There is not a bad penny in all those millions."

"Well, it is rather staggering, isn't it?" said Montgomery, passing his hand over his forehead. He was beginning to comprehend.

"In more ways than one. What are you going to do about it?"

"Do about it?" in surprise. "Why, it's mine, isn't it?"

"It is not yours until next September," the lawyer quietly said.

"Well, I fancy I can wait," said Brewster, with a smile that cleared the air.

"But, my dear fellow, you are already the possessor of a million. Do you forget that you are expected to be penniless a year from now?"

"Wouldn't you exchange a million for seven millions, Mr. Grant?"

"But let me inquire how you purpose doing it?" asked Mr. Grant mildly.

"Why, by the simple process of destruction. Don't you suppose I can get rid of a million in a year? Great Scott, who wouldn't do it! All I have to do is to cut a few purse strings, and there is but one natural conclusion. I don't mind being a pauper for a few hours on the 23d of next September."

"That is your plan, then?"

CHAPTER V.
A NEW point of view gradually came to Brewster. All his life he had spent in wondering how to get enough money to pay his bills, and it had not occurred to him that it might be as difficult to spend as to acquire wealth. The thought staggered him for a moment. Then he cried triumphantly, "I can decline to accept grandfather's million."

"You cannot decline to accept what is already yours. I understand that the money has been paid to you by Mr. Buskirk. You have a million dollars, Mr. Brewster, and it cannot be denied."

"You are right," agreed Montgomery dejectedly. "Really, Mr. Grant, this proposition is too much for me. If you aren't required to give an immediate answer I want to think it over. It sounds like a dream."

"It is no dream, Mr. Brewster," smiled the lawyer. "You are face to face with an amazing reality. Come in tomorrow morning and see me again. Think it over; study it out. Remember the conditions of the will and the conditions that confront you. In the meantime I shall write to Mr. Jones, the executor, and learn from him just what he expects you to do in order to carry out his own conception of the terms of your uncle's will."

"Don't write, Mr. Grant; telegraph. And ask him to wire his reply. A year is not very long in an affair of this kind." A moment later he added: "Hang these family feuds! Why couldn't Uncle James have reformed a bit? He brings endless trouble on my innocent head just because of a row before I was born."

"It was a strange man. As a rule, one does not carry grudges quite so far. But that is neither here nor there. His will is law in this case."

"Suppose I succeed in spending all but a thousand dollars before the 23d of next September? I'd lose the seven millions and be the next thing to a pauper. That wouldn't be quite like getting my money's worth."

"It is a problem, my boy. Think it over very seriously before you come to a decision one way or the other. In the meantime we can establish beyond a doubt the accuracy of this inventory."

"By all means go ahead, and please urge Mr. Jones not to be too hard on me. I believe I'll risk it if the restrictions are not too severe. But if Jones has putrid instincts I might as well give up hope and be satisfied with what I have."

"Mr. Jones is very far from what you'd call putrid, but he is intensely practical and clear headed. He will undoubtedly require you to keep an expense account and to show some sort of receipt for every dollar you disburse."

"Good Lord! Itemize?"

"In a general way, I presume."

"I'll have to employ an army of scribes to devise ways and means for profligacy."

"You forget the item which restrains you from taking anybody into your confidence concerning this matter. Think it over. It may not be so difficult after a night's sleep."

"If it isn't too difficult to get the night's sleep."

All the rest of the day Brewster wandered about as one in a dream.

He held up the little sheet of paper ruefully.

He was preoccupied and puzzled, and more than one of his old associates, receiving a distant nod in passing, resentfully concluded that his health was beginning to change him. His brain was so full of statistics, figures and computations that it whirled dizzily, and once he narrowly escaped being run down by a street car. He dined alone at a small French restaurant in one of the side streets. The waiter marveled at the amount of black coffee the young man consumed and looked hurt when he did not touch the quail and lettuce.

That night the little tale in his room at Mrs. Gray's was littered with scraps of pad paper, each covered with an incomprehensible maze of figures. After dinner he had gone to his own rooms, forgetting that he lived on Fifth avenue. Until long after midnight he smoked and calculated and dreamed. For the first time the immensity of that million thrust itself upon him. If on that very day, Oct. 1, he were to begin the task of spending it he would have but 357 days in which to accomplish the end. Taking the round sum of $1,000,000 as a basis, it was an easy matter to calculate his average daily disbursement. The situation did not look so utterly impossible until he held up the little sheet of paper and ruefully contemplated the result of that simple problem in mathematics.

It meant an average daily expenditure of $2,801.12 for nearly a year, and even then there would be 16 cents left over, for in providing the result of his rough sum in division he could account for but $999,999.84. Then it occurred to him that his money would be drawing interest at the bank.

"But for each day's $2,801.12 I am getting seven times as much," he soliloquized as he finally got into bed. "That means $19,607.84 a day, a clear profit of $16,806.72. That's pretty good—yes, too good. I wonder if the bank couldn't oblige me by not charging interest?"

The figures kept adding and subtracting themselves as he dozed off, and once during the night he dreamed that Swearingen Jones had sentenced him to eat a million dollars' worth of game and salad at the French restaurant. He awoke with the consciousness that he had cried aloud, "I can do it, but a year is not very long in an affair of this kind."

It was 9 o'clock when Brewster finally rose, and after his tub he felt ready to cope with any problem, even a substantial breakfast. A message had come to him from Mr. Grant of Grant & Ripley, announcing the receipt of important dispatches from Montana and asking him to luncheon at 11. He had time to spare, and as Margaret and Mrs. Gray had gone out he telephoned Ellis to take his horse to the entrance to the park at once. The crisp autumn air was perfect for his ride, and Brewster found a number of smart people already riding and driving in the park. His horse was keen for a canter, and he had reached the obelisk before he drew rein. As he was about to cross the carriage road he was nearly run down by Miss Drew in her new French automobile.

"I beg your pardon," she cried. "You're the third person I've run into, so you see I'm not discriminating against you."

"I should be flattered even to be run down by you."

"Very well, then, look out." And she started the machine as if to charge him. She stopped in time and said, with a laugh: "Your gallantry deserves a reward. Wouldn't you rather send your horse home and come for a ride with me?"

"My man is waiting at Fifty-fifth street. If you'll come that far I'll go with pleasure."

Monty had merely a society acquaintance with Miss Drew. He had met her at dinners and dances as she had a host of other girls, but she had impressed him more than the others. Something indescribable took place every time their eyes met. Monty had often wondered just what that something meant, but he had always realized that it had in it nothing of platonic affection.

Waiting to Hear From Kruger.
St. Petersburg, July 10.—The government is awaiting a report from Admiral Kruger before making representations to the Roumanian government for the return of the mutineers of the Kniat Potemkine. It is stated that the foreign office that no official information of the attitude of Roumania toward the mutineers had been received.

Tiffs, Transcaucasia, July 10.—Bomb throwing continues daily. Two dvorniks were killed and thirteen persons wounded by a bomb, and a policeman was shot last night.

ON RUSSIAN SOIL

After Eighteen Months' War Jap Flag Waves in Enemy's Domain.

ISLAND OF SAKHALIN

Has Been Occupied by Japanese
Army, a Step Full of Significance to Both Sides.

The Result of This Movement On Peace Negotiations Is Gravelly Disputed.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—With the Japanese flag hoisted for the first time on Russian soil after eighteen months of war, the importance of the landing on the island of Sakhalin is generally admitted, both in newspaper comment and in government circles. Complete occupation of the island is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The Novoe Vremya voices the general sentiment in holding that control of Sakhalin puts a powerful lever in the possession of Japanese diplomacy which finally has something tangible in its hands to throw on the scales with the sword in the coming conference. There is a divergence of opinion with regard to the effect it will have on the negotiations at Washington, some of the irreconcilables declaring that it makes peace at the present juncture more impossible than before, as Japan will be able to demand the cession of the island and a heavy indemnity as well, at which terms of peace will be too costly, but the more prevalent view is that Japan has now in her hands enough triumphs to take the game.

The attack on the island certainly dissipates one of the hopes of the peace advocates who have been suggesting that its voluntary cession might be an offset, with Port Arthur and the Chinese railroad, against the payment of a large part of all of a monetary indemnity.

No further report of the landing operations has been received.

IN LINE ONCE MORE

The Kniat Potemkine No Longer a Floating Menace.

Kustenji, Roumania, July 10.—Admiral Kruger Sunday afternoon boarded and took possession of the Russian battleship Kniat Potemkine, which surrendered Saturday, King Charles of Roumania having sent instructions to the commander of the Roumanian squadron that the vessel be delivered to the Russian authorities without raising difficulties. The torpedo boat which accompanied the Kniat Potemkine, however, left for Odessa without surrendering, declaring that she had not mutinied, but that the Kniat Potemkine had forced her to follow.

Admiral Kruger arrived with his squadron Sunday morning and after exchanging the customary salutes, intimated that he had come to arrange for the transfer of the Kniat Potemkine. Admiral Koslinski, commander of the Roumanian squadron, boarded the Russian battleship Tehesme and informed Admiral Kruger that King Charles had ordered him to turn the vessel over to the Russian admiral. The formalities of the transfer were completed in the afternoon and Admiral Kruger boarded the Kniat Potemkine.

The Associated Press representative inspected the Kniat Potemkine after the withdrawal of the Roumanian guard. Despite the efforts of the Roumanians to get things shipshape, everything aboard the battleship was still in a state of extreme disorder. The officers' cabins were stripped of everything of any value, and bloodstains were everywhere. There was sufficient ammunition aboard the ship to have enabled the mutineers to make a desperate resistance.

It is said that during the last few days the vessel was navigated by two engineers and an officer with revolvers at their heads.

All of the sailors wished to surrender, with the exception of Matschenko, leader of the mutiny, who resisted for some time and wanted to blow up the ship. Seven officers were prisoners aboard the Kniat Potemkine. They were in a pitiable condition from ill-treatment. They declare that Matschenko himself killed ten officers of the battleship. All the papers and books belonging to the vessel were destroyed.

It appears that the decision to surrender the Kniat Potemkine was made when it became evident that no other vessels would join in the mutiny. The crew of the battleship seemed to be unaware of the surrender of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz, and expected that she was also coming to Kustenji to capitulate to Roumania.

Twenty married sailors from the Kniat Potemkine have applied to the Russian consul here to be sent back to Russia.

Waiting to Hear From Kruger.
St. Petersburg, July 10.—The government is awaiting a report from Admiral Kruger before making representations to the Roumanian government for the return of the mutineers of the Kniat Potemkine. It is stated that the foreign office that no official information of the attitude of Roumania toward the mutineers had been received.

Tiffs, Transcaucasia, July 10.—Bomb throwing continues daily. Two dvorniks were killed and thirteen persons wounded by a bomb, and a policeman was shot last night.

Two blocks of business and residence sections at Goldfield, Nev., have been totally destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $200,000.

Count Cassini, Russia's first ambassador to the United States, after seven years' service, has left Washington for his new post at Madrid.

In a pistol duel between Green Merrill and Harvey Rice on Indian Creek in Owsley county, Kentucky, Merrill was killed and Rice was seriously wounded.

Eight men were blown to pieces and another fatally injured by a premature explosion on the Pennsylvania railroad improvement near New Cumberland, Pa.

At Dickson, Tenn., Dr. E. W. Reddings, the town's leading physician, was shot and killed by J. E. Fowler, a musician, who charged Reddings with ruining his home.

ceived. A dispatch from Theodosia states that during a parade of the Volna regiment a shot was fired from the ranks at the colonel, but missed him. The shot was a signal for an outbreak, which was quelled after an officer and a private had been severely wounded. Trouble evidently was a reflex of the mutiny on the Kniat Potemkine.

OFFICIAL SCANDAL

A Leak Has Been Discovered in Agricultural Department.

Washington, July 10.—One of the most trusted officials of the department of agriculture is in disgrace as a result of the disclosure that a New York broker has been supplied with "tips" on the contents of the national report on the cotton production of the country. The official who has fallen from grace is Edwin S. Holmes, associate statistician. The man he is alleged to have favored is L. C. Van Riper. Incidentally it is also alleged Theodore Price was supplied with information.

For months rumors of a leakage have been current. Prices on the several exchanges previous to the issuance of the government report also lent color to the tales. Secretary Wilson at once began an investigation and the developments are a great surprise, not only to the cotton brokers, but to all official Washington.

Holmes has been regarded as above suspicion and is a most competent man. Secretary Wilson says there seems to be every reason to believe from the reports of secret service agents that Holmes could have given approximately correct information anywhere from one to three days in advance of the publication of the official report. As soon as he had removed Holmes, Secretary Wilson appointed Victor Olmstead associate statistician, and set about to make sure there would be no more leakages.

Price Resents Accusation.

Washington, July 10.—Theodore H. Price of New York has arrived in Washington and through his attorney requested Secretary Wilson to withdraw what Mr. Price characterized as the "unjust, offensive and unsustained charges and implications" contained in the report made public in connection with the removal of Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., assistant statistician of the department of agriculture. The secretary has Mr. Price's request under consideration.

BLOWN TO ATOMS

Eight Victims of Premature Explosion on Pennsylvania Railway.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 10.—Eight men were blown to pieces and two others were injured by the premature explosion of a big blast of rock powder on the Pennsylvania railroad improvements near New Cumberland Sunday morning. The accident occurred directly across the Susquehanna river from the scene of the Pennsylvania railroad wreck on May 11, in which twenty-three persons were killed and many others injured. All the victims of the disaster were employees of contractors who are building the double tracks for the Pennsylvania railroad to connect with the Enoia yards. The bodies of the men were terribly mangled and particles of flesh and bone were scattered for a distance of 200 yards from the scene of the explosion. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of premature explosion from an unknown cause, and no blame attached to the contractors.

Assassinated on Doorstep.

Coalmont, Ind., July 10.—Roll Cardwell, thirty-five years old, was called to his door early Sunday morning and shot to death. There is no clue to his assassin. Cardwell was popular, and as far as is known had no enemies. He was employed by the Jansville Coal company. He leaves a family.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The seventh international convention of the Epworth League has closed at Denver.

The international socialist congress is in session at Constance, Grand Duchy of Baden.

The nineteenth annual reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks is in session at Buffalo.

The engagement is announced of Paul Nash, American consul at Venice, and the Baroness Ina Mayneri of Piedmont.

It is stated at Mexico City that no more gambling licenses will be issued after Aug. 1, when all existing licenses expire.

James Bruno, aged twenty-two, and John Palmer, aged sixteen, were drowned in the Cuyahoga river at Cleveland.

Two blocks of business and residence sections at Goldfield, Nev., have been totally destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $200,000.

CHINA WANTS IN IT

Peace Conference Will Not Be Complete Without Her She Thinks.

JAPAN AVERSE TO IT

The Mikado Regards Himself Fully Capable of Executing His Promise Without Neighborly Aid.

Last Week Has Seen Few Developments in Plans for the Negotiations.

Washington, July 10.—China's request to be represented in the Washington conference on the ground that she is vitally interested in its proceedings, has been received by the president and informally transmitted to the belligerents. Whether the president has received the formal replies cannot be learned, but it can be stated that while Russia is inclined to favor the suggestion, Japan will not consent to it. Japan has already made public her assurance that Manchuria is to be restored to China. That is one of the principles for which she says she has been fighting. Japan regards herself as fully capable of executing this promise without the assistance of China, and in view of China's inability before the war to cope with Russia in Manchuria, the Japanese government is unable to see what possible service a Chinese representative would be in the Washington conference. Moreover, Japan has all along taken the position that when peace negotiations were begun they would be conducted directly with Russia. It is altogether unlikely that the Washington government will press the claim of China, and the official view here fails to sympathize with the idea.

The past week has seen few developments in the plans for the negotiations. Negotiations for an armistice are not expected to be concluded until after the plenipotentiaries meet.

Baron de Rosen will go to New York within the next few days and thence to Oyster Bay to be presented to the president. No place has yet been finally selected for the holding of the conference, but it is believed here that the choice lies between Portsmouth, N. H., and Portland, Me., with the chances in favor of the former.

SUNDAY RACE WAR

New York Street the Scene of a Vicious Battle.

New York, July 10.—Two were shot, one probably fatally, in a fight between mobs of whites and negroes in West Sixteenth street Sunday. The trouble began when Henry Hart, a colored man, was attacked in the street by a number of white youths, who accused him of interfering with a ball game. Hart fled, pursued by a mob of whites hurling stones, rocks and other missiles, and reached the tenement house in which he lived. He got a revolver, while his pursuers made efforts to break into the building. Hart began firing, one of his shots striking James Hunter, policeman John Loyal ran into the house and arrested Hart after the latter had fired twice at the officer. As Loyal brought his prisoner out several negroes, armed with all sorts of weapons, attempted to rescue Hart. The policeman was knocked down and kicked, but he kept a firm grip on his prisoner and finally succeeded in warding off his assailants. By this time the whites had been reinforced and the negroes broke and fled. A shot fired from a negro tenement struck Mrs. Mary Donohue in the head, inflicting a probably fatal wound. The police arrested Albert Middleton, who is supposed to have fired the shot, and five other negroes. In spite of the presence of a large body of police reserves, desultory fighting between whites and blacks continued, until a sudden downpour of rain ended the hostilities.

Jury Couldn't Agree.

Shelbyville, Ind., July 10.—After long deliberation the jury in the case against George E. Dipple, charging him with assault and battery with intent to kill George B. Thurston last March, was unable to agree. The shooting for which Dipple was tried occurred at the Dipple home after Thurston, who married Dipple's sister a few years ago, and from whom she obtained a divorce later, had made himself a nuisance, so it is alleged, to his divorced wife. Dipple fired three shots at Thurston, all of which took effect.

Suicide of Old Cashier.

Philadelphia, July 10.—Silas McDonald, who was for years cashier of the State National bank at St. Joseph, Mo., and who came to this city after that institution went into liquidation, committed suicide Sunday by cutting his throat in the presence of his wife. He had been ill in health. His wife was severely cut in attempting to prevent him from committing the deed.

Two Brothers Drowned.

Memphis, Mich., July 10.—Orville Glassford, aged twenty-one years, and his brother Leo D. Glassford, aged sixteen, were drowned in the Belle river while swimming. Lee got beyond his depth and Orville went to his assistance. Both became exhausted and sank in fifteen feet of water.

PUTS IT OUT OF BUSINESS

Fraud Order Directed Against a Specious Enterprise.

Washington, July 10.—Postmaster General Cortelyou has announced the issuance of a fraud order against the People's United States Bank of St. Louis, its officers and agents, and E. G. Lewis, a publisher, effective July 8. The action bars the company from the use of the mails, after an investigation by the postal authorities as to the details of the business of the institution. The postmaster general in his announcement says:

"It is understood that the funds of the bank which have not been borrowed by Mr. Lewis and his enterprises, amounting to about two-thirds of the total amount remitted, are deposited in banks and will be available toward reimbursement of the stockholders, who number upward of 65,000. It is the intention of the officers of the postoffice department to co-operate with the secretary of state of Missouri in every proper way for the interests of the investors and depositors."

The announcement of Mr. Cortelyou says that although in early articles in his magazine Mr. Lewis represented that he would subscribe to the capital stock a dollar for every dollar subscribed by all others, so that he would own one-half of the capital stock, and that later he represented that he had pledged his entire fortune, every dollar he had, and his publishing business in the banking enterprise and that his subscriptions would exceed a million dollars, the inspectors found that Mr. Lewis had not co-operated to the extent of a single dollar of his own money, although the bank had been in operation seven months and had a paid-up capital stock of $2,000,000.

On March 15 Lewis had loaned from the bank's funds to himself and his enterprise $394,604.63, the paid-in capital stock of the bank then being half a million. On March 29, when $2,000,000 capital stock had been paid in, a statement furnished by Lewis at the hearing, upon request, showed he had loaned to himself and his enterprises $907,538.83.

Caught at the Crossing.

Detroit, Mich., July 10.—Nine persons were injured, one of them fatally, last evening at the corner of Fort and Hastings streets, when a Trumbull avenue car crashed into a wagon load of people returning from a drive about Belle Isle park. Joseph Schwartz of Toledo, who was fatally injured in the collision, was driving and did not hear the car approaching. The wagon was squarely on the track when the car struck it, and was demolished. The occupants were hurled in every direction.

Quiet Sunday on "The Trail."

Portland, Ore., July 10.—"The Trail" concessionaires did not attempt to open their attractions Sunday. The Lewis and Clark exposition authorities absolutely refused to recede from their position, and even went so far as to order its guards to close, by force if necessary, any attraction attempting to violate its contract.

The distracting headaches from which so many women suffer make life a daily purgatory. If men suffered with headache as women do, business would be almost at a standstill. Does not the fact that men do not suffer from these severe headaches suggest that there must be a womanly cause for them?

When the womanly organism is diseased, headache, backache, nervousness and sleeplessness are consequences which are sure to follow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures headaches and other aches and pains by curing their cause. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It soothes pain and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into happy, healthy women. Thousands have testified to its marvelous merits.

"I took two bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and two of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and am feeling well," writes Mrs. Dan McKenzie, of Lorway Mines, Cape Breton Co., Nova Scotia. "I had uterine trouble, pain in the side and headache. After taking your medicine I got well. You may publish this or use it in any way you think best, as I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

A Poem for Today

THE MUSIC GRINDERS

By Oliver Wendell Holmes

There are three ways in which men take One's money from his purse,
And very hard it is to tell
Which of the three is worse:
But all of them are bad enough
To make a body curse.

You're riding out some pleasant day,
And counting up your gains,
A fellow jumps from out a bush,
And takes your horse's reins,
Another hints some words about
A bullet in your brain.

It's hard to meet such pressing friends
In such a lonely spot,
It's very hard to lose your cash,
But harder to be shot;
And so you take your wallet out,
Though you would rather not.

Perhaps you're going out to dine—
Some filthy creature begs;
You'll hear about the cannon-ball
That carried off his pegs,
And says it is a dreadful thing
For men to lose their legs.

He tells you of his starving wife,
His children to be fed,
Poor, little, lovely innocents,
All clamorous for bread,
And so you kindly help to put
A bachelor to bed.

You're sitting on your window-seat
Beneath a cloudless moon;
You hear a sound that seems to wear
The semblance of a tune,
As if a broken fife should strive
To drown a cracked bassoon.

And nearer, nearer still, the tide
Of music seems to come,
There's something like a human voice,
And something like a drum;
You sit in speechless agony,
Until your ear is numb.

Poor "Home, Sweet Home" should Seem to be
A very dismal place;
Your "Auld Acquaintance," all at once,
Is altered in the face.

You think they are crusaders, sent
From some infernal clime,
To pluck the eyes of Sentiment,
And dock the tail of Rhyme,
To crack the voice of Melody,
And break the legs of Time.

But hark; the air again is still,
The music all is ground,
And silence, like a poultice, comes
To heal the blows of sound;
It cannot be—it is—it is—
A hat is going round!

Not pay the dentist when he leaves
A fracture in your jaw,
And pay the owner of the bear,
That stung you with his paw,
And buy the lobster, that has had
Your knuckles in his claw;

But if you are a portly man,
Put on your fiercest frown,
And talk about a constable
To turn them out of town;
Then close your sentence in a rage,
And shut the window down.

And if you are a slender man,
Not big enough for that,
Or if you cannot make a speech,
Because you are a flat,
Go very quietly and drop
A button in the hat.

Wed As Requested.

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon the wedding of Elvin Smith, of Seymour, to Miss Leola Lewis, of Columbus, was consummated at the home of her grandmother at the latter place in compliance with a request made by his mother before her death a few weeks ago. Miss Lewis attended Mrs. Smith during her long illness and it was her dying request that her son make Miss Lewis his wife. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cabbell, of Seymour, where they will reside.

Saturday Evening Fight.

Last Saturday evening about 5 o'clock Ed Wilson and Chas. Atell engaged in a fight at Fred Diener's saloon but were separated before either was seriously hurt. One of them got a black eye and the other came out with a rash out in his back. Warrants were issued for them and Wilson was arrested and gave bond for his appearance Wednesday. Abell has evaded the officers so far.

Twelve O'clock Dinner.

At her home on Indianapolis Ave., Mrs. Mary England pleasantly entertained at twelve o'clock dinner Sunday, Mrs. Harry Abbott and son Raymond, of New Orleans, La., Mrs. Harry Graves and daughter Ruth, of Columbus, and Miss Bertha Alves, of Seymour.

Greatly in Demand.

Nothing is more in demand than a medicine which meets modern requirements for a blood and system cleaner, such as Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are just what you need to cure stomach and liver troubles. Try them. At W. F. Peter Drug Co., 25c, guaranteed.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

Rushville, Ind., July 10.—While Harry Posey, twenty-two years old, was attempting to jerk a shotgun from behind the bureau for the purpose of killing some crows on a nearby fence, the hammer caught, causing the accidental discharge of the weapon, which tore away the entire right side of the young man's head.

Warm Welcome to Bridal Pair.

Stockholm, July 10.—The homecoming of Prince Gustavus Adolphus, son of Crown Prince Gustave, and his bride who was Princess Margaret of Connaught, Sunday, was made the occasion for enthusiastic demonstrations.

The Term "Crony."

Every one uses the term "crony" in the sense of "chum" or "pal," and the phrase "old cronies" has become especially familiar, but it is doubtful whether the original word bore any reference to friendship. The new English dictionary puts down its origin to academic slang and quotes the immortal Peypys for the earliest instances of its use. Quite recently, however, an old letter of a still earlier date has come to light, in which a scholar is described as "content to destroy his body with night labors and everlasting study to overtake his cronies and contemporaries." From this it would seem clear that the word was a bit of university jargon, used to denote students of the same date and coined from the Greek word that appears in the terms "chronology," "chronometer," "chronograph," that are connected with time.

Sheridan's Trap.

Any interruption while he was making a speech always caused Richard Brinsley Sheridan considerable annoyance. On one occasion the dramatist showed his displeasure of a fellow member of the house of commons who kept crying out "Hear, hear!" every few minutes. During a certain debate Sheridan took occasion to describe a political contemporary who wished to play rough, but had only sense enough to act fool. "Where," exclaimed he, with great emphasis—"where shall we find a more foolish knave or a more knavish fool than he?"

Spoiled Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard, of 209 W. 34th St., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes: "I had salt rheum or eczema for years, but nothing would cure it, until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25c at W. F. Peter Drug Co."

In a Glass House.

"If there is one thing more than another that makes me wild," said a member of the Mutual Improvement club to a friend, "it is to have that Potter woman correct me when I just make a slip of the tongue. Did you hear her say in that supercilious way of hers, 'My dear, I'm sure you could not have meant that they had meant "between each number"—you meant between every two numbers.' And every one near us heard what she said, the cat!"

"Oh, I shouldn't mind her," said the other woman easily. "If you want revenge just look at her with one of those short waisted, pudgy daughters of either side at the assembly and not a man on the horizon."

"M-m!" said the aggrieved one. "Yes, she does look funny; but my dear, did you realize you said 'on either side' instead of 'on each side'? Of course if they were on either side they'd—we'll, they couldn't be, you see! I knew you wouldn't mind having me speak of it, for I've noticed you make that little error occasionally, and it's so easy to form a habit."

Shocked the Queen.

The queen of Denmark once paid a visit to the Danish colony of Iceland, where the good old bishop exerted himself to the utmost to show her everything that was worth seeing. The queen paid many compliments to her host, and having learned that he was a family man, graciously inquired how many children he had. It happens that the Danish word for "children" is almost identical in sound with the Icelandic word for "sheep," so that the worthy bishop, whose knowledge of Danish was not so complete as it might have been, understood her majesty to ask how many sheep he owned and promptly answered:

"Two hundred."

"Two hundred children!" cried the queen, astounded. "How can you possibly maintain such a number?"

"Easily enough, please your majesty," replied the prelate, with a cheerful smile. "In the summer I turn them out upon the hills to grass, and when winter comes I kill and eat them!"

The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are, without perhaps any exception, the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sins he never possessed and can never pay, the rich to be squeezed of all he possesses, while those only can hope to escape who are members of families sufficiently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor should he attempt extortion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the jealousy and aversion of the sultan. Even the governors of the provinces suffer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they squeeze the agricultural and the peasant so are they in turn squeezed by the sultan and his viziers, and should they fail by constant protests to maintain a good opinion at the court they can expect only imprisonment and often death.

The Only One of Its Kind.

On an evening somewhere about the end of the sixteenth century a traveler from Sweden might have been observed at the door of the Rose theater in London. He was going to see a new piece called "Titus Andronicus," and in order to follow it in the native language he bought a copy of the play, price sixpence, at the theater door. When he went home to Sweden he took the book with him to show his wife and friends what strange stuff the foreigner raised. For 300 years it was preserved and in 1704, being discovered in the home of a countrywoman, was transferred for safety to the Lund university. The book is the only one of its kind known to exist.

Match Making in France.

A recent writer says of the commercial side of matchmaking in France: "In most French marriages money plays the important part. The first question asked by the young man is, 'How much?' At a rule, it is an easy matter to ascertain without applying directly to the papa, but even when the demand there is always a contract drawn up by a notary, which specifies the exact sum the girl receives."

A Man of Credit.

A distinguished Irish lawyer, always in improved health circumstances, once took Chief Justice Whitehead to see his magnificently furnished new house in Dublin.

"Don't you think," he said, with a complacent look about, "that I deserve great credit for this?"

"Yes," the judge answered dryly, "and you appear to have got it."

A Serious Moment.

"Yes," said the married man meditatively, "when you see a woman hanging out a line of clothes and the line slips and lets the blessed lot down in the mud, that, my boy, is the psychological moment in which to leave that woman alone."

SEEING AMERICA.

Wonderful Scenic Trip Across Rocky Mountains to Oregon Exposition.

In certain respects the excursions to the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition, Portland, Oregon, via Pennsylvania Lines, beginning May 23rd and continuing through the summer, offer advantages never before presented to Exposition visitors. The trip to the Oregon Exposition, in addition to the attractiveness of the extensive exhibits, includes the journey through the scenic wonderland of the Rocky Mountains and the Cascade Range, and what American has not looked forward from the days of the geography class in school to the time when those great sights should be seen in reality? The time was never so favorable as now. The trip may be made less expensive than ever. For only a slight difference in fare tourists may extend their trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles. The return trip may be made over a different route, enabling travelers to view much more of the west. For full particulars, fares, dates of special excursions to Portland on account of conventions, through time and passenger service apply to ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines.

Low Fares to Buffalo via Pennsylvania Lines.

July 8th, 9th and 10th, excursion tickets to Buffalo, account Annual Meeting, Grand Lodge, B. P. Order of Elks, will be sold from all ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines. For full information regarding fares, time of trains, etc., apply to Local Ticket Agents of those lines.

family. Mr. Story lived in Seymour many years and has a number of relatives and friends here.

Rev. H. S. Huffman and R. L.
Moseley left this morning for Pine-lake, Minnesota, where they will attend a Sunday school convention for several days. They were joined at Columbus by Jay C. Smith and at Indianapolis by Robert Blair.

FAMILY IN WANT.

Crothersville Ministers Seek Aid
For Widow And Children.

CROTHERSVILLE, Ind., July 8.—An unusual case of destitution, due to an accident caused by an automobile, has been called to the attention of the Revs. C. J. Kelch and W. O. Goodloe of this place, and the Rev. I. C. Overman, of Uniontown. A widow and seven children are in want, having been rendered destitute by the death of the husband and father. Thurman Sparks, a farmer, was driving along the road, about seven weeks ago, when his horse became frightened at an automobile, and he was thrown out of his vehicle. The driver of the automobile picked him up and brought him to this town, where a physician treated him for a broken thumb. The automobilists gave the farmer $5, but did not tell where they lived, nor did they give their names. It developed afterward that Sparks had been injured internally. He died last week, leaving his family of eight penniless and in debt, with a small farm on which there is a mortgage which has been paid in part.

The automobile party is supposed to have been from Indianapolis or Louisville. It is thought by the ministers named that if the party were aware of the destitute condition of the family relief would be afforded the widow to the extent, at least, of paying off the balance due on the mortgage.

A WAY OPEN.

Many A Seymour Reader Knows
It Well.

There is a way open to convince the greatest skeptic. Scores of Seymour people have made it possible. The public statement of their experience is proof of the like of which has never been produced before in Seymour. Read this case of it given by a citizen:

Mrs. Atlas Shannon of Third street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills gave me positive relief from the dull dragging pain in my back, banished the extreme sensitiveness over the loins which caused sharp twinges when stooping or moving quickly and removed the restlessness nights besides strengthening the renal organs that I was no longer embarrassed by the kidney secretions. I was greatly gratified by the satisfactory results I obtained and my advice to others is to go to Mil-hous' drug store and procure Doan's Kidney Pills if in need of a remedy of this nature."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo,

Sickening Shivering Fits

of ague and malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to Quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. "E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Texas, writes: My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At W. F. Peter Drug Co. Price 75c, guaranteed.
